Housing the Future

Formerly used for storage by Nebraska Bookstore; this is the new home for the Technology Development Department of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln Campus. New windows and paint give the building exterior a fresh, modern look that coordinates well with the Nebraska Book Store. The interior finishes are bright and high tech, leaving no doubt that this is where tomorrow is happening. One interesting sidelight to this project is that many of the surplus fixtures removed during the demolition phase were taken to a recycling firm that will give them a new life on another project.
